
Remitly launches the Global Card, built for people whose lives extend across borders

Posted on July 30, 2026 by Tatyana Manheim

Our customers' financial lives don't begin and end with sending money home. They earn, spend, save and support families across borders every day. The launch of the Remitly Global Card is the next step in helping customers manage more of those financial moments wherever they happen to be, all from one card.

We've built a place for customers to have a true cross-border financial experience. The Remitly Global Card combines several one-of-its-kind features including:

- Better remittance prices and faster, lower-fee sends
- No-fee everyday spending
- A bank account for everyone
- The ability to hold and move money in fiat currency or USDC
- Instant transfers between Remitly cardholders
- No foreign transaction fees
- Direct deposit and global ATM access
- Access to credit through the Remitly Global Card Membership plan

“Our top goal for the Remitly Card was for it to disappear into people’s everyday lives, so sending money home feels as simple as buying a coffee. Whether you’re getting paid in Seattle, sending money to family in Asia, or picking up groceries in Latin America, it’s the same card and the same balance, no matter which currency country you’re in. No separate app to spend. No separate account to save. It’s one card, and it’s yours wherever you go. We’re excited to bring it to customers today.” Sebastian J Gunningham, Chief Executive Officer of Remitly.

Watch the video to see the Remitly Global Card in action:

https://news.remitly.com/wp-content/uploads/2026/07/Remitly-Global-Card-FINAL.mp4

We’re not just reaching more customers, we’re serving more of the financial moments in the lives of customers with one cross-border experience.

Remitly Card is beginning a phased rollout to eligible, invited customers today, with expanded regional capabilities rolling out globally through the remainder of 2026.